The passenger train which left Washington last evening for Baltimore could proceed no farther than Story Creek, fourteen miles from this city. It was also found impossible to return, and the passengers, forty or fifty in number, were compelled to remain on the cars all night, and some women and children were not taken off the train till six o'clock this evening.

LETTER FROM SALEM

[illegible]

The company of which I was one left the city [illegible] arrived at the Mountain House [illegible] 12 o'clock noon. Here we spent the rest of the day in arranging [illegible]

[illegible] once and this seemed to [illegible] us. The towering crags and yawning canyons that were brought to view at every turn of the road, the majestic forest, the beautiful and to most of the party strange flowers that strewed the roadside called out expressions of surprise and delight as we rode along and greatly assisted to while away the hours. At 11 o'clock we arrived at Rock Creek and stopped to lunch and allow the horses to rest and feed, but the flies were so numerous and annoying that our stay was considerably shortened. We pushed on until we reached the long grade going down to Elk Creek towards Quartzville, where the panorama of a wide extent of mountains is spread out before the tourist. The grade is two miles down to the creek and rather steep, but is a [illegible] from the climbing that we had experienced. The road follows the bed of this creek for two miles and is decidedly rough and wet although on bedrock, while the towering banks of the canyon reach hundreds of feet above, crowned with forest, which seem to maintain a very precarious foothold in the rocks, a consideration not at all calculated to inspire a nervous person with confidence as he passes along. Elk Creek is a beautiful, clear stream and its waters contain many mountain trout. For a person passionately fond of angling a better stream could not be found in our mountains. From Elk Creek the road is considerably better. At times it passes at least a hundred feet above the boisterous stream below, which flows into the North Santiam a few miles below. In about one mile and a half from Quartzville we leave the road and traverse a bridle path or mountain trail which furnishes sufficient employment to the rider in guiding his horse over logs and roots, swaying from side to side to miss overhanging limbs, holding on his hat with one hand while the other is busily employed in preventing the animal from scraping you off against trees and ends of logs as he goes stumbling along. Of course there are places where a person can look around and note the appearance of country and timber. The North Santiam is about forty feet wide, remarkably clear, and contains a great many trout, some of which are very long. The stream is not deep, but is one continual rapid. Crossing the river we went about a mile and halted at an old camping ground known as Robbers' Roost. This is one of the prettiest places that can be found. We were now within three miles of Galena, which we reached the next morning after crossing Avalanche creek, which flows at an angle of about forty five degrees. The banks of this stream show indications that at no great distant time a tremendous body of snow has swept down from the high mountain above, taking trees and stones with it to where Avalanche creek joins Lookout creek. You may here see trees broken off several feet above the ground. This could have been done only by bounding rocks.

THE GALENA MINES

Are situated in the side of Lookout mountain, which is the highest in that neighborhood. They contain great deposits of lead bearing gold and silver which will undoubtedly pay the expense of mining. The first lead was discovered by a Mr. Diggs some ten years ago, who prospected it to some extent, but not being acquainted with the mode of reducing the ore to a marketable condition the lead was abandoned and so remained until a short time ago. About two years ago another party went out prospecting and one of the number discovered a well defined lead above the Diggs lead. They immediately commenced work on the same by sinking a shaft and running a tunnel. Two well defined leads were [illegible] and drifted on, and the third reached when operations were suspended on account of the lack of means, although there were between fifteen and twenty tons taken out [illegible] with it both silver and gold in sufficient amount to pay all expenses. The summit of Lookout mountain is a [illegible] affords [illegible]

GRANDEST [illegible]

To be found in the Cascade mountains [illegible] is saying a great deal. When seated on this towering mountain where snow lays to the last of August you are on a precipice fully five hundred feet high, which is only apparently the commencement of a canyon that is 2,000 feet deep. At the bottom [illegible] creek on its way to join the South Santiam. In this creek a tunnel was run and other work done on mines supposed to contain copper several years ago [illegible] at Quartzville [illegible] our position in the clouds [illegible] can be seen [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] The place is still [illegible] at once reconnoitred [illegible] rest. The building [illegible] crushed rich quartz [illegible] in good condition.

[illegible] the Black [illegible] ready for use [illegible] The tramways [illegible] quartz and the manner of saving the gold in [illegible] I was informed that [illegible]

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS

Has been expended without receiving a thousandth part in return. All at once work was suspended and everything left. Afterwards the mill was sold for debt. I merely give this statement as it was given to me.

The town stands on a rather extensive flat which miners say gives every indication of rich placer diggings. A shaft was sunk to the depth of fifty seven feet without striking bedrock, when it was abandoned. Two years ago another party sunk a hole above the town a number of feet, but striking water before bedrock they were compelled to suspend operation. Other parties have tried to discover and work pockets and chimneys in the different tunnels, believing that money could be made by that mode of mining, but they in turn [illegible] did not pay and left [illegible] myself have seen some remarkably rich specimens that have been taken [illegible] the moderately paying rock in the lead [illegible] on the occasional rich chimneys. But these are rich mines, as I have before stated [illegible] some person who understands the most economical process of extracting the precious metals shall [illegible] these mountains they will probably make large fortunes.

We left this camp at an early hour the next morning, ascended the mountain and cooked our breakfast at Stampede Prairie. To say that we had a good appetite would be a mild expression of the fact, for the way that we disposed of our food at this last meal on the mountains would have thrown any hotel keeper of the State into convulsions. After a few hours travel we arrived at the Mountain House, well satisfied with our trip and richly repaid for the toil that we experienced. From this place down to the valley we had a comparatively level road.

THE MOUNTAIN ROAD

Was built at the time the excitement about the mines was at its height and cost about $80,000. It was the work of an incorporated company who charged toll on the same, but when that excitement died out no work was done upon it. It is now impossible for wagons to get to Quartzville. The greatest obstructions have been caused by fire and washing of winter rains, etc. I do not know whether the company still maintains its corporate existence or not, but presume it has naturally [illegible] ed apart through neglect and want of patronage.

These mountains at the present time contain an immense quantity of blackberries and huckleberries, especially about the deserted village. These we feasted on to our hearts' content.

THE FARMERS' WAR

CHARGES AGAINST THE RAILROADS—MYSTERIES OF COAL-STEALING—THE FARMERS CONTEND THAT FAST FREIGHT LINES INJURE THEIR INTERESTS—THE FARMS MORE HEAVILY TAXED THAN THE RAILROADS—[illegible] CO-OPERATIVE PURCHASES

[Special cor. N. Y. Tribune.]

KEWANEE, Henry county, Ill., July [illegible].—We think the leading railroads of this State, besides charging too high rates for the benefit of the stockholders, are not managed as economically as they might be, and that there are rings connected with some of them which are increasing the cost of running the roads for their own benefit, said Mr. Smith, the chief manager of the Farmers' Movement in this State, continuing the conversation partially reported in my last letter. It is generally hard to discover just where the swindles [illegible] when the officers of [illegible] dividends come regularly the stockholders are not often very watchful over them. Sometimes however we get hold of [illegible]. Now here's the Burlington and Quincy road, which has at Kewanee a patent shoot for coal. It takes at this point forty tons a day. The miner will sell me coal at the bank for seven cents a bushel—that is $1.75 a ton. He charges the railroad for eleven cents a bushel [illegible] He pays one cent a bushel [illegible] ton for carting. This leaves [illegible] delivered, which the miner charges the railroad company, buying coal at wholesale, at [illegible] excess of what he charges me, who buy by the single ton. Now here must be [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] that was [illegible] is discriminating and has increased the [illegible] farmers at all competing points [illegible] lower rate at a competing point [illegible] evidence of unjust discrimination. But that is what this law says.

[illegible] Mr. Hurd [illegible] Superintendent of the Burlington [illegible] testified before [illegible] Legislative committee last winter that the road cost $47,000 a mile. [illegible] been taxed on from two to [illegible] thousand dollars [illegible] for road, rolling stock, depots, side-tracks and everything, while the farmers have been taxed for nearly the cash value of their property. This we don't consider fair.

Referring again to the low price of grain, I suggested that the low price may be partially due to over production.

Mr. Smith admitted that the amount of the crop greatly affected the price of grain, but said that there was another reason why the farmers got so little for their crops—they are so constantly in need of money that they are obliged to sell for [illegible] they can get. Instead of fixing their [illegible] Suppose [illegible] that each of [illegible] in town should load up a wagon every morning and send it into the country [illegible] or whatever it would fetch and bring back [illegible] don't you suppose groceries would be cheap and [illegible] high. Reverse the picture and you have the state of affairs actually existing. The farmer [illegible] have tea and coffee and sugar. He loads up his wagon with corn [illegible] The grocer says, "This tea cost me a dollar a pound. I will sell it to [illegible] dollar and fifteen cents. The coffee cost me forty cents. I will sell it to you for fifty." The farmer is obliged to take them at these prices [illegible] He has no money and [illegible] to purchase them. But he is not allowed to say to the grocer, "This corn cost me twenty five cents a bushel. I shall have to ask you thirty." The grocer on the other hand says to him, "I'll pay you twenty cents." Now this will continue just as long as the farmers are no more prosperous than they are now. I hold that there never has been an over production; that there is a demand for all that is raised if it could only be got cheaply to market. What is needed is for the farmers to be able to hold on to their grain when the price is low and sell when the market is favorable.

[illegible] PURCHASES BY THE GRANGE

Mr. Smith, like many other farmers whom I have met, complained of the enormous profits made by middlemen on almost every manufactured article the farmers buy. Many of the Granges have employed purchasing agents who are now buying farming and domestic machinery at wholesale prices. The wholesale dealers in Chicago at first refused to sell except at retail prices to the agents of the Granges, saying that by so doing they would lose the trade of agents and retail dealers. Most of them have, however, reconsidered this determination, and the saving made by the farmers by purchasing through the Grange is from 10 to 50 per cent. A farmer in Bureau county gave me some figures that will illustrate the workings of this system. A good farm wagon complete retails at $100; the Grange purchases it for $70. A plow for which the farmers have been paying $22 a Granger gets for $16. A $50 sewing machine is purchased for $30 and a $65 one for $39. From $40 to $60 is saved on the price of a parlor organ. A rapidly growing competition seems to have sprung up among the wholesale dealers for the custom of the Granges, and whatever other results the movement may have, the farmers will be greatly benefited by the co-operative purchases.

HORRIBLE INDIAN ATROCITIES

A St. Louis dispatch of the 11th inst. says: The Rev. Norman Badger, an army chaplain of Fort Concho, Western Texas, arrived here yesterday en route for Washington. A scouting party returned to Concho last Saturday week after forty days [illegible] number of stolen ponies captured from Indians off the reservations. They also brought in the fresh scalp of a white girl fifteen years of age, who with a woman was killed and scalped on Staked Plain about two weeks before. Mr. Badger says that it is now known that General Mackenzie, during his great expedition against the Comanches, [illegible] killed upwards of one hundred of them. It was reported at the time that he had killed twenty three. About three weeks ago a band of Indians appeared near Concho and [illegible] killed Mrs. Williams and [illegible] little girl of Mrs. Williams. They [illegible] her head against a [illegible] and threw her body into the fire. They then [illegible]

OREGON

[illegible] Oregon City Enterprise [illegible]

Hoodlums [illegible] Albany and make [illegible] people [illegible]

[illegible] Wednesday [illegible]

Mr. C. H. Mattoon, formerly of Brownsville, has located in Albany and taken charge of the Baptist Church. He takes the place of Dr. L. G. Hill, who is on quite an extended visit to his old home in the States.

The masons have suspended work on the University building at Eugene City for want of brick. However, the work will be resumed in a few days. The building is now completed above the windows of the second story.

The Turn Verein Society was permanently organized at Oregon City last Monday evening, and the following officers were chosen for the ensuing quarter: Geo. A. Harding, President; Capt. Wm. F. Pratt, Treasurer; A. Schühman, First Leader; [illegible] Levy, Second Leader.

[illegible] at Lower Soda, in the Cascade Mountains, Linn county, has a field of oats which averages [illegible] inches high. He also has an extensive meadow from which he produces six tons of hay to the acre. Who's the match to it?

At McMinnville the grain comes pouring into town, wagon after wagon load being on the street at once sometimes. It is the general report from farmers that their grain returns much better than they had calculated it would. Spring grain is said to be better than ever before.

On Thursday a Mr. Blakely of Brownsville was brought to Albany and placed upon trial before His Honor, Judge Tandy, charged with assault upon Mr. G. W. Howell, also of Brownsville, with a dangerous weapon—revolver. Blakely was bound over in the sum of $1,000 to answer at the next term of the Linn county Circuit Court.

At the meeting of Masters of Granges held in Albany on Tuesday it was decided to form a Central Association of Granges for Linn and all the counties adjacent who may choose to make Albany their headcenter until such time as a State Grange may be organized. The meeting to form [illegible] is called to meet [illegible] September next.

Mart Brown of the Democrat has begun his eighth volume and says: "For seven long years have we shoved the quill for the Democrat, and yet the world is still wicked and people still persist in taking back pay. In this melancholy view of the situation it is barely possible that we will be pardoned for expressing a willingness to take back pay also—from those owing us on subscription."

The Sisters' new Academy building at Salem came near burning last Tuesday night. The fire started by the cook hanging up her apron, on which a spark of fire had caught, in a closet filled with clothing. The entire contents of the closet were burned, and the building would certainly have been destroyed but for the presence of several men at work about it, who subdued the flames with no further damage.

By private letter from Union county the Enterprise learns that the harvest this year will be abundant, but, says the writer, farm products except for home consumption are not worth the labor bestowed upon them here. Times are harder here than I ever saw them before. Money is absolutely out of the question. I do not know how our people are to pay taxes this fall. We are completely bottled up in this section.

The Albany Register says: One day last week Mr. John L. McClure brought into our office several heads of Sonora wheat which were ahead of anything so far exhibited for our inspection in the line of wheat this season, the grain being full and plump and very heavy. We took the trouble to count the grains in one head and found there were eighty eight perfectly developed grains. An acre of such wheat would easily yield one hundred bushels.

The citizens of Lafayette intend to have a bridge across the Yamhill river at their town. At a second meeting held on the [illegible] the committee appointed at the last meeting to confer with the County Commissioners reported that if the citizens would go on and build the bridge the county would pay one half the cost. A resolution was passed that the citizens do build the bridge, and the following [illegible] appointed a Board of Directors: [illegible] Burbank, [illegible] Ferguson and Dr. W. W. [illegible]

[illegible] Mr. K[illegible] has [illegible] of his traveling agents a very curious and interesting fossil bone. It [illegible] from Little Willow Creek, from a spring [illegible] Mountains [illegible]

[illegible]

The McMinnville paper says: On Satur[illegible] the community was shocked [illegible] so suddenly [illegible] people [illegible] his presence upon the [illegible] On this [illegible] he left the [illegible] wood he was [illegible] at the Commercial [illegible] he asked Mr. [illegible] saying he was very [illegible] remarked to Mr. Heron [illegible] at the same time [illegible] At this instant Mr. Heron [illegible] backward, but was caught before he reached the floor by Mr. Wilson and Mr. Myers, who sprung to his assistance. He gasped once and all was over—he was dead.

The Yamhill Reporter says: "Mr. S. D. Gaunt has been out on a tour of this county and some of the neighboring counties, and on coming home he tells us what he saw while [illegible] travel he has seen [illegible] grain, while in [illegible] the yield is far exceeding expectation. Many farmers who reckoned on getting 30 bushels to the acre get 40 to 45. Very many instances he knows of where fields of wheat go 50 bushels to the acre. It is his opinion that the crop this year will be double that of any previous year. Oats and hay will be the same. Mr. Gaunt was buying sheep for Mr. Nye, of Walla Walla, who stopped here some time since. The latter gentleman drives away about 2,200 head of the best sheep he could get from the flocks of this county, Marion, Polk and other counties."

From the Salem Mercury: The cutting and threshing of grain is now in full blast in the valley. The berry of the wheat is large and plump as usual, and the yield in all the valley counties will be [illegible] less than thirty three bushels per acre this year. Oats will yield forty five bushels per acre, average rate. The hay crop is all cut and well secured, and there is a very large yield and amount throughout the valley. The potato crop will be above an average this year, as will also the fruit crop. Cabbages did not stand well last spring and will be somewhat scarce. Soft fruits are plentiful for home use. Taking everything into account we have reason to be thankful for so abundant crops as we now have in Oregon. If the hundreds of unfortunate laborers in Portland, who were lately burnt out there, would go out among the farmers, none would suffer with want, and the farmers need their help.

THE TERRITORIES

Lumber seems to be the great want of the Tacomans at present.

Visitors to the Yellowstone Park are pouring [illegible] into Montana this season.

[illegible] hides are being shipped from Bozeman to Corinne, destined for the East.

The Legal Tender Mine, Clancy District, Montana, has just been bonded in London for $1,000,000.

Tacoma has two bakeshops, whereas the time was when she did not have any; whereat the Tribune rejoices.

Montana Indians are gathering in the valleys for the berry harvest. As long as the berries last hair is at a discount.

The chickens of Montana are [illegible] the grasshoppers. Ranchmen say for every grasshopper swallowed there is an egg produced.

We are requested to state that the fall term of Miss A. Loomis' select school for girls, at Vancouver, will commence on the first of September next.

Forty Chinese landed at Tacoma last Tuesday evening. On Wednesday they built a house ten feet square, and are now occupying their commodious quarters.

The Railroad Company have cut the timber on 80 acres of land at Tacoma, and that which is unfit for making lumber is to be burnt in one vast bonfire this (Saturday) evening.

Erysipelas is putting heads on the citizens of Silver City to an alarming extent, and it is not an unfrequent sight to see men marching about with heads swelled to the size of a peck measure. But they don't feel proud nor happy.

The Lewiston Signal of the 9th inst. says: The boundary surveying party has finally got under way and have designated the initial point. A train of pack animals crossed Clearwater on Friday with supplies for the route northward.

There are several surveying parties at work in Dacota, some on Government land and others on railroad routes. With the expectation that opposition might be offered these men by hostile Indians, United States troops have in most cases accompanied the engineers in their travels.

The Denver Times says there are many people in Denver who are hard up—workmen who were induced to go there by advertisements and favorable letters, expecting to find plenty of work. The fact is, Colorado has been greatly overrated, and a reaction is taking place. The deluded are discovering that they have been duped, outrageously duped, by land sharks and speculators.

An affray occurred on Latah [illegible] Lewiston [illegible] of last week, in which [illegible] shot [illegible] Milom, his brother in law. It appears Ousley and a man named Daley had a difficulty, and while trying to shoot the latter Ousley missed the mark and hit Milom. The wound is in the leg, and from later reports we learn the man is in an easy condition.

[illegible] A New York gentleman stopping at one of the [illegible] hotels requested the proprietor to change his room, as the next apartment to his was occupied by that torment of [illegible] a crying baby. When he arrived [illegible] New York he went off to take a drive, and on his return to the hotel he was shown to his new apartment, with the information that the baggage of the former occupant had [illegible]

The Daily Oregonian.

SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 16, 1873.

A NEW DIPLOMA.

It was a fatality in the wisdom of poor Anacharsis Clootz that in no part of his strange career as "orator of the human race" did he appreciate, as Marat did, that the press was nearer the popular brain than the tribune. Had he passed the 23d of March, 1794, and into the nineteenth century, he might have learned "something to his advantage." If this fecund age has evolved one idea that is sufficient to immortalize it, that one is the discovery of the power of the press "unawed by influence and unbribed by gain"—the actual value of the independent, conscientious journalist. There is no disputing this: the editor has come to be superior to the ruler; or, rather, he is a ruler of rulers. His pen appeals directly to the universal heart of the community, and thus surpasses the ephemeral influence of the mere politician. He is at once the conservator of public morals, the instructor in politics and the guardian of the best interests of the race. In his three-fold capacity, he can be a despot if he may so choose, but his power may not endure.

The idea of a school of journalism, where the editorial science is taught, is a comparatively new one. Such an institution has been founded in Cincinnati, and we are told that it has opened under exceedingly favorable auspices. Several college graduates are in attendance, and more are expected. It is said that "they [illegible] it to be their intention to learn the business?" Imagine a student in Chemistry—qualitative analysis, for instance,—starting out to learn the busin[illegible]. This is, presumably, the prospectus of the Cincinnati College for Editors. We can readily believe that the young graduate would come to a settled belief in journ[illegible] as a science after three months [illegible] application on a genuine newspaper, where the most delicate operations of [illegible] and social chemistry are constantly [illegible] themselves. But notwith[illegible] the unprepo[illegible] ing appearance of the Cincinnati scheme, we question [illegible] it may not be the avant courier of a very general disturbance of the settled order of things in the journalistic line. It may be the shadow of a substance. [illegible] it behooves us to consider [illegible] the possibilities. Already [illegible] of jou[illegible] abound in [illegible] variety. But this new system [illegible] to take the raw material and [illegible] therefrom a slippered and [illegible] with diploma certify[illegible] the bearer has [illegible] and fitted [illegible] the [illegible] of what? Master Editor? After [illegible]encement day comes a curri[illegible] longer than the first, [illegible] if the candidate be a man [illegible], and above all adapted to the calling, he will for the first time be[illegible] it. On the whole, then, the [illegible] of the Cincinnati Editorial Fac[illegible] be worth the price of the [illegible] at least. And though it may [illegible] yists by the [illegible] a genuine editor will be a rara [illegible] placed in the College [illegible] as a monstrosity. Emerg[illegible] the fragrant shades of Pork[illegible] behind the long line of Anacharsis [illegible]—and in [illegible] for each some 23d of [illegible] a guillotine.

[illegible] was a long-suffering, debt-rid[illegible] the citizens of the District of [illegible]. We are that one. We have [illegible] to the enormous debt of $17,[illegible] which has been contracted in carrying [illegible] is termed "a systematic and com[illegible] improvements." Forney's [illegible], published in Washington, [illegible] in the [illegible] and denun[illegible] of this enormity. In a recent number [illegible] that securities which two or three [illegible] sold for 95 cents, under the present [illegible] hawked about the District at a dis[illegible] from 20 to 30 per cent. in exchange [illegible], and in some [illegible] are refused even [illegible] being used among the pawn[illegible] of the city as security for the advance of fifty cents on the dollar. This state of [illegible], if it exists, is simply disgraceful to the [illegible]. The District of Columbia is under [illegible] supervision of Congress, and [illegible] matter has become one of national importance. If anything were wanting to complete [illegible] of corruption and fraud it would [illegible] in the following telegram, dated August 11th:

An investigation into the conduct of the [illegible] in this [illegible], which has just concluded, shows these [illegible] to have [illegible] from the people in this [illegible] nearly $150,000 annually in excess of [illegible] fees. The District Legislature, by laws [illegible] in favor of these harpies, have practically nullified all the exemption laws passed [illegible].

We are consoled by the reflection that the people are in no humor to endure such things patiently. The next Congress will right these wrongs, and provide against any possible repetition.

The potato bug may reign in the East, the [illegible] worm may hold undisputed sway in the South, the weevil may be prophet of famine [illegible] the West, but the musquito is King of the Red River country—right royal majesty anointed with a chrism of blood! A preacher who was largely endowed with Davy Crockett's [illegible] of the marvelous, once informed his [illegible] that in some of the bottom lands of [illegible] the winged pests were so numerous and powerful that they would "sit on logs [illegible] bark as the traveler passed by." In the [illegible] of Red River valley this might not be an exaggeration, for a correspondent of an Eastern paper says that in that country horses are not unfrequently killed by musquitoes. In a [illegible] day's ride he has often been obliged to [illegible] and clean the nostrils of his horse, which [illegible] clogged with these insects. And even in [illegible] it is considered as much a piece of etiquette to take off your coat and shake it before entering a friend's house, as to take the [illegible] from shoes. This correspondent tells of [illegible] instance where a preacher and his audience [illegible] compelled by the musquitoes to suspend [illegible], and another where a sawmill was [illegible] by the voracious monsters. Your [illegible]quito of full habits (and what musquito is [illegible] built on that plan?) is a genuine Democrat, [illegible] blood counts for anything in the struggle [illegible] existence there must needs be an hereditary [illegible] in the veins of culex horribilis. Thus it [illegible] not be stranger than many other political surprises should a musquito be found some [illegible] on the throne of France or in the Mexican dictator's palace. Certes, he could do no [illegible] than most French Kings have done:—[illegible] the people.

Mr. Smalley, London correspondent of the New York Tribune, writes that Baron Reuter addressed a note to Lord Granville declaring that he desires to serve his adopted country (England) by introducing his enterprise—the Persian railway—under English auspices alone. Pointing out the rapid progress making by Russia with her military railways and urging the importance which, under such circumstances, his own concession has. He asks that he may be able to feel assured that should any disagreement arise between the Persian Goverment and himself he will be protected as a British subject, and have his rights enforced. The Foreign Office snubbed him in the following note from Lord Enfield, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs: "I am to acquaint you that while Her Majesty's government would view with satisfaction the efforts of the Shah's Government to increase by means of railways and roads, the resources of Persia, they cannot bind themselves officially to protect your interests while carrying out your engagements with that Government." Seeing that he can not rely on England for support in case he should need protection, we would like to have somebody demonstrate the exact degree of certainty possessed by Reuter that he will be able to enforce the terms of his concession in Persian Courts.

The S. F. Chronicle says it is "striding onward;" that it will shortly introduce improvements costing one hundred and fifty thousand dollars; and that it has instructed its agents to double subscription lists or resign in favor of more efficient men. This is a pleasant bit of bluster that is characteristic of a certain style of journalism. The Bulletin alleges that the Chronicle is "striding onward" at the expense of its integrity, and solemnly avers that its opponent has sold itself to the Central Pacific Railway Company, in order to secure the election of a railroad Senator to succeed Casserly whose term expires in March next. The Call revives a memory that was almost obsolete, of that pungent "Oregon style," of which we heard so much a few years since. Here is a specimen weapon from the armory of the Call: "The people of San Francisco know the character of the scavenger sheet too well to be cajoled by its fulsome promises and incessant bluster. As a braggart, it is a success; but instead of a newspaper, it is a mere smut machine." From all of which we infer that the personal (we cannot say political) contest in California is growing bitter.

The loss by the Toornto postoffice robbery is said to be very heavy. The authorities refuse to give any particulars of the affair. It is known, however, that ninety registered envelopes containing a large sum of money are missing. "Detectives are engaged in ferriting out the mystery," says a dispatch. Everything of a criminal nature is dubbed "mystery," in these times. In the days of primitive simplicity of the Anglo-Saxon tongue, larceny was understood to be st[illegible]ling, the fact of the theft was published, and frequently the offender was punished. But we incline toward a new order of things now-a-days.

When a mild, inoffensive Ca[illegible] [illegible] by [illegible] just because in a moment of indiscretion he neglects to marry her, it becomes a matter of grave import to understand just how far a failure to fulfill the matrimonial pact will justify the taking of human life. Illinois courts will be called on for an opinion on this subject in the case of the Commonwealth of Illinois vs. Bridget Sullivan, which female assassinated John Griffin on the 11th inst., because, as she alleges, "he promised to marry her and then married another."

If the republican simplex be inclined to smile at the pretentious proclamation of Count Chambord, as sketched in our morning dispatches, let him reflect for a moment on an unostentatious bit of news that appeared in Paris papers of the 41th inst:

A scheme for the purpose of re-establishing the monarchy of France is at present engaging the attention of the monarchical and imperial circles here. The monarchist leaders have drawn up and are circulating a pamphlet proposing the re-establishment of the throne. The question is being placed in due form before the Assembly, and a majority has been found to support the measure. The Assembly meets on the 5th of November.

Mr. James Redpath, publisher of the Charlestown (Mass.) Chronicle makes the pleasant announcement that he will shortly commence the publication of Gen. Butler's defense of the back-pay grab. He has seven columns in type. The defense will be published in the form of a serial letter addressed to a constituent. The author has made an elaborate historical and legal presentation of the whole matter, says the Chronicle.

[COMMUNICATED.]

"Then, with a liberal hand, provide all of the best fire apparatus which may be required at any time. If you do not want it for every day use, store it away safely for the time when needed."—Correspondent in OREGONIAN, August 8th.

"Space is given up in the OREGONIAN for a long diatribe against the Bulletin respecting the late fire, in which there is neither point, truth nor sense."—Bulletin, August 9th.

"The New York Times, speaking of the Portland fire, says it is another proof of the inadequacy of preparation in our cities to meet sudden emergencies, and that it is cheaper to provide adequate means to extinguish fires than to rebuild cities."—Bulletin, Aug. 15th.

Do give us another diatribe on trees ex-ses, Scott. "Ax!"

CITY.

CAPSIZED.—Considerable excitement was occasioned yesterday afternoon about half past 2 o clock on account of the capsizing of a small sail boat near the saw mill on the east side of the river The craft which capsized is a new boat recently built by Major Robert and S O L Potter We were unable to learn who the person was in the boat at the time In consequence of some mismanagement the wind caught the sails and over went the boat A number of persons who saw the accident from both sides of the river started to the rescue One man leaped into a skiff and with nothing more effective than a shovel as a paddle started out to rescue the man who was still clinging to the capsized boat He succeeded in reaching the scene in time and took the man into his boat In the meantime the little steamer Maria Wilkins which was lying at the wharf at the time, steamed out as rapidly as possible This steamer rendered material service in towing the capsized boat to the shore For a time until the facts were known it was noised about that one man was drowned but fortunately no greater damage was done than to wet the sails of the boat and give the person sailing her a good sound ducking

PASSENGERS.—The following passengers sailed yesterday on the steamship Oriflamme Mrs Charles Green and two children, Mrs. Ada Baker R D Hume and wife, E W Thompson G W Moore J Jacobson and boy H Lawson Miss Jennie Macnamara Capt Summers and wife Miss W Chainard, J Teple and wife I I Brownell Mrs Batt, mother and three infants J C Hildreth John Honeyman P J Davies W M Ladd Theodore Royal, W O Kent A Beck Captain J Harlow wife and child George W Merrill and wife, Mrs Butler and child, H E Simmons, A C Farnsworth L Baum, J G Sutherland J L Thorp L Kuhn W S Evans P W Simmons and wife Charles Hirstel Mr Remes J D Baily Dr Cochran, James Dwier J F Merrill, C C Benis J M Caywood, C D Shepherd Mrs M J Nichols, W F & Co s messenger and 25 in the steerage

CABIN UP.—For some days the caulker's hammer has been ringing vigorously on the hull of the new steamer which is being built by the Wallamet River Transportation Company, above the upper saw mill The work has progressed so far towards completion that the hull and deck have been planked, and most of the frame for the cabin raised Within two weeks the new craft will be ready to "take water" September the first has been the time allowed by the contract for the completion of the new boat but in consequence of unavoidable delays the time will no doubt be extended a few weeks The machinery will be ready in a week or so, and the boiler only requires the tubes to be placed in it to be rendered [illegible] The intention is to have the boat completed in time for the fall grain trade, and for the accomplishment of this object the Company are bending every effort

SMALL DOCKET.—From present indications, and the tardy manner in which the Court Calendar is filling up, there will be a very small docket to dispose of at the fall term of the Circuit Court. Up to the present date papers but for four cases have been filed with the County Clerk—three law and one chancery case. Unless there is a decided increase of litigation, but little necessity will remain for a term of Court.

GAS HOLDER.—Since the subsidence of the water of the Wallamet a number of men have been engaged in working on the new gas holder at the corner of sixth and F streets Already the concrete bottom has been laid, and the first course of the iron plating, of which the holder will be built, is being laid There being nothing to detain operations work will be crowded through with all haste.

BURGLAR-PROOF SAFE.—Mr Wilshire received a few days ago a burglar-proof safe—one of Hall's which can be seen at the store of Knapp, Burrell & Co This safe is of elegant workmanship, and is so [illegible] constructed that it is quite enough to dishearten the [illegible] burglar to simply take a glance at the triple layers of hardened steel

DURNED DISTRICT.—Mr. Edmund T Coleman, the well known artist, has taken a sketch of the burned district a short time after the fire, and is engaged in painting an oil view of that desolated portion of the city If past efforts are any guarantie, the forthcoming sketch of Mr Coleman will be up to his usual [illegible] standard

HYDROGRAPHIC SURVEY.—Cap R. B. Randell, of the U S Corps of Engineers, is at present engaged in making a hydrographic survey of the channel between Portland and St Helen's bar, preliminary to dredging to a depth of seventeen feet, for which there is a Federal appropriation [illegible]

CYLINDERS.—The Oneonta, after arriving at her wharf last evening, went down to the boneyard and took on board the cylinders of the Fannie Troup, undergoing repairs These engines will be taken to the Dalles this morning, where they are to be worked over at the shop of the Company

WORK TO COMMENCE.—Work will commence in a few weeks on the new steam fog whistle which is to be erected at Point Dungeness the present season An appropriation has already been made and the contract let for the erection of the signal

HAULED OUT.—The little sailing yacht Owl, owned by Messrs Thielsen, Linderman and Talbot, was hauled out yesterday at the foot of F street for repairs and general overhauling The hull will be scraped, painted and put in good sailing trim.

"MIDDLESEX" GONE.—The English ship Middlesex having obtained her crew, proceeded over the Bar on last Thursday She carries away a large quantity of grain to Europe

RELIEF COMMITTEE.

An adjourned meeting of the Relief Committee was held last evening at the office of Ladd & Tilton

The meeting was called to order by the President Mr Ladd

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved

The Committee appointed some time ago to go over the burnt district and appraise the losses sustained by each person and the amount of the insurance submitted their report The report was read by the Chairman of the Committee Mr Thomas Frazer and is too lengthy to publish

On motion it was resolved that the names of persons who have sustained losses and whose names appear in the report of the Appraising Committee, should not be published in the daily press of the city at least for the present

The Committee reported that they had used all proper diligence to ascertain the losses and insurance

After long careful and arduous labor, they had found the total loss to aggregate $915,000 total amount of insurance $245,000 leaving a total loss of $670 000

The following is the concluding remarks made by the Appraising Committee

REPORT

In getting at the valuation the Committee have relied mainly upon their own judgment in valuing the buildings destroyed particularly the wooden buildings In valuing the brick buildings in some instances we have had the opinion of master mechanics as to the probable cost of placing them in as good condition as they were before the fire

In regard to the loss of personal property we have to rely mainly upon the owners statements In doing this we have criticised their statements to that extent we have deemed proper in order to get at facts as far as possible In most cases we are pleased to say they have shown a disposition to give the facts as far as they could In some cases we found parties disposed to rate their losses we think above the true facts consequently in such cases your Committee were placed in an unpleasant position In several instances we found those who have lost say from $25 to $100 unwilling to have the amount reported but the aggregate of such amounts would not probably exceed $2 000

Your Committee have been steadily at work for the most part of eight days This has been done in order to get at the facts, rather than to make up reports from guess work Notwithstanding all this labor, we have probably overlooked some that should have been reported Therefore we earnestly solicit all such to make their losses known to the Committee who will make a supplementary report of the same we say also to any and all of those in immediate want of assistance that have not been reported by this or to the Disbursing Committee, to let their wants be known either to this Committee or to the Disbursing Committee

We would also say to those who feel that they have been misrepresented as to the amount lost, that corrections will be made if your Committee is found to have erred, as we have no interest in this matter but to get at the facts.

We have also made inquiry as to the number of persons thrown out of employment We find that nearly all have found employment of some kind Most respectfully,

THOS FRAZER
H H CARPENTER,
LEWIS LOVE,
EMIL FRANK

On motion of Mr Failing, at the close of the reading of the report the thanks of the General Committee were tendered to the Appraising Committee for the diligent and faithful manner in which they had discharged their duties The report, on motion, also accepted

DISBURSING COMMITTEE

Mr W S Caldwell, Chairman of this committee submitted a report.

As appearing from his report, the total amount of warrants and orders drawn by order of the Disbursing Committee from August 7th to the 15th, inclusive, was $9 470

From the report of the Secretary of the Relief Committee, the sum total of the subscriptions from all sources in the city aggregates the sum of $14 275

Since the last meeting the following additional subscriptions were announced Hon H. W Corbett, $500; Mrs C Levy, $50, Geo A. Pease & Co $40

Mr. Wasserman moved that all the telegrams received by the Mayor in relation to aid be taken from the table and read, which motion prevailed

RESOLUTION

Mr Wasserman offered the following resolution

WHEREAS, The Committee on Disbursements, deem the funds on hand together with anticipated subscriptions of citizens whom the Soliciting Committees have not had an opportunity to see and also funds to be realized by concerts, sufficient to meet all immediate wants of the sufferers by fire therefore be it

Resolved, That this Committee authorize and request His Honor Mayor Failing, to decline with our grateful thanks, aid from abroad our own citizens having by their munificent donations enabled us to relieve all present destitution and reasonable wants.

Immediately following the reading of the above preamble and resolution, considerable discussion arose as to its adoption

At length the resolution was laid on the table and its consideration deferred to a subsequent meeting of the Committee.

On motion the Committee then adjourned

TRAGEDY IN LEIPZIG.—A terrible tragedy is narrated by the German papers Herr Schweinhoff, a merchant of Leipzig aged 65 years after losing his first wife married a young girl of eighteen who of course was only enamored of the old man's wealth Schweinhoff had, by his first wife a son who seems to have been a rather wild character On returning home after a two years absence the son who was aged 25 years commenced a liaison with his step-mother Schweinhoff suspected the intimacy, and soon determined to be avenged Having acquired proofs of the treachery of the couple he awaited his opportunity On July 5th he took a horse and rode to a country house then occupied by his wife On entering the grounds he beheld her and his son seated at the edge of a small lake, engaged in conversation He at once put spurs to his steed and trampled the woman under the horse s hoofs She flying fell into the lake The son then sprung upon the father and during a struggle which ensued after Schweinhoff had been pulled from his horse, he stabbed him fourteen times in the face and breast with a poignard which the father had carried in his own belt Then he ran to the rescue of his mistress and leaped into the water, but his strength failed him before he reached her The lifeless remains of the guilty pair were recovered an hour later Leipzig was in a state of consternation

THE SQUIRE'S VISITORS

HOW RELATIVES ARE TREATED IN PEORIA

Squire Binks, a retired old gentleman, lives away down on Seventeenth street. The other morning three old ladies from Macon county came to his house on a visit They used to know his wife before she was married The Squire welcomed them to his mansion, and then went out to his barn and swore for half an hour While soothing himself thus his wife called him into the house She handed him an umbrella to keep off the sun and said the ladies had walked up from the depot and left some things there for him to bring up. So he brought them up making two round trips for the baskets, bandboxes and two black oil cloth traveling bags all of which, the Squire discourteously called infernal old traps

As he sat in the back kitchen wiping his brow his wife brought out the market basket and said there was not a bit of sugar or tea in the house and she remarked that while he was going down town he might as well get the molasses jug filled The Squire asked her how long these old migrators pelicans were going to stay And she asked him if he thought she would be so rude as to ask them Then the Squire went down and laid in the groceries When he got back his wife said she had forgotten something and thought of it just when it was too late She must have some corn starch The Squire asked her if any of the old scare-crows had dropped the least hint as to the duration of her visit She said not. The Squire looked sad and discontented.

When he laid the paper of corn starch on the kitchen table his wife said they must have a cod fish for dinner One of the ladies said in the course of conversation that she was fond of cod fish The Squire asked if the old buzzards had yet committed themselves on the extent of their present roost She said he ought to be ashamed of himself

When he slapped the cod fish down on the table with a whang his wife got him to bring in some water and wood said Mrs Spoonamper she never dined without ale and the Squire was asked if he would go down and bring up a bottle He asked if he shouldn't go into the parlor and get those old corn rants to make out a list of what they did like and further more asked if they were yet silent as to when they thought of going away

He got the ale and for fear he would have to trot down town again he hired an express wagon and loaded it with all sorts of garden truck a bottle of whisky a box of sardines a pound of snuff smoked tongue cut and dried tobacco pickled walnuts canned corn mackerel split peas etc

The next day the Squire was sent down town only eight times

Early next morning he started out into the country to see a man When he got home he asked his wife if any time had been set for the departure On the evening of the following Monday one of the ladies said she thought they ought to start in the next Friday so as to reach home before Sunday Mrs Binks said they oughtn't to be in a hurry The Squire groaned and said they ought to stay and make their visit out On Friday morning the Squire had an express wagon before the door But his wife said the ladies had concluded to stay over the Fourth Then the Squire went out to saw wood and converse with himself Peoria Review

SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 16, 1873.

"A SOWER WENT FORTH TO SOW."

A sower went forth to sow
His eyes were wild with woe ;
He crushed the flowers beneath his feet,
Nor felt the perfume, warm and sweet,
That prayed for pity everywhere.
He came to a field that was harried
By iron, and to heaven laid bare
He shook the seed that he carried
O'er that brown and bladeless place
He shook it, as God shakes hail
Over a doomed land,
When lightnings interlace
The sky and the earth, and his wand
Of love is a thunder-flail
Thus did that sower sow
His seed was human blood,
And tears of women and men.
And I, who near him stood,
Said "When the crop comes, then
There will be sobbing and sighing
And souls to hell be flying
And a woe that is worse than woe

It was an autumn day
When next I went that way.
And what, think you, did I see?
What was it that I heard?
The song of a sweet-voiced bird?
Nay, but the songs of many.
Through-thrilled with praising prayer!
Of all those voices not any
Was sad of memory.
And a sea of sunlight flowed,
And a golden harvest glowed!
On my face I fell down there ;
I hid my weeping eyes,
I said "O Lord, Thou art wise!
And I thank Thee, again and again,
For the sower whose name is Pain.

ABBY FOLSOM.

TRIAL OF THE NOTED FEMALE AGITATOR THIRTY YEARS AGO—A VERDICT WHICH SURPRISED HER.

From the New York Sunday News.

Most persons who have lived in Boston for the last thirty years will recollect what was familiarly termed the "Municipal Court." While the old Court of Common Pleas exercised jurisdiction in certain particulars over both civil and criminal cases in other parts of the State, in Boston the criminal jurisdiction was invested in said Municipal Court, a tribunal independent of any court of the same grade, and presided over by a single Judge.

It was during the administration of the venerable Judge Thatcher that Abby Folsom, in the exercise of her wayward disposition, disturbed, and, to some extent, disrupted, a meeting devoted to religious worship, and where she certainly had no right to interfere. For this offence she was arrested, indicted, and arraigned for trial in the aforesaid Municipal Court. This condition of things was not exactly a novelty to Abby. Indeed, she rather courted the situation, as it gave a splendid opportunity to display her peculiar talents.

Abby was accordingly arraigned, and at once confronted with the question, "Are you guilty or not guilty?" She promptly pleaded "Not guilty," and declared herself ready for trial. Judge Thatcher, in his blandest tone, inquired if Mrs. Folsom had any counsel to manage her case. The answer was ready and prompt. "If your Honor please, I shall manage the case myself."

The trial went on. The witnesses were few, the testimony to the point, the cross-examination, by the defendant, amounted to nothing, and in a remarkable short time the Government rested its case. The Court informed Mrs. Folsom that she was at liberty to put any person on the stand to testify in her behalf. She had no witnesses; and it at once became apparent that she intended to rely, not on evidence, but on argument. This was her strong ground.

On this field she had passed through many a struggle, and, at least in her own view, had never suffered defeat. The Court, therefore, directed her to proceed. But the preliminaries must first be settled, and Abby, in her most winning tone, inquired, "If I do not finish my argument to-day, may I go on with it to-morrow?" This was a stunner. The Judge was prepared for almost anything else. Here it was, about 10 o'clock in the morning, and the query was, whether she might have the remainder of the day and "go on to-morrow."

Judge Thatcher was decidedly startled and exclaimed, "To-morrow! why certainly not! You can't be allowed all of to-day!" Said Abby, "How long may I have?" The Judge replied, with some vehemence, "Not more than an hour." Abby very innocently inquired, "Does Your Honor confine all lawyers to that limit?" This question was another desperate one for the Court, a perfect snag. At that time, there was not, certainly in this court, nor, according to the best of my information, in any other, any rule limiting counsel to any given time for making a plea.

Mrs. Folsom, and every other person in the room, knew it, and Judge Thatcher was completely confounded. A few words passed in an undertone between the Judge and the District Attorney, and, without having the question answered, Mrs. Folsom was directed to go on.

Abby then commenced her plea. The argument was in her peculiar style. She quoted the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, Shakspeare, the Bible, and whatever else came in her way.

She went on, rolling in her eloquence, and rounding out her periods for a full hour, to the amusement of the audience, and the evident perplexity of the Court. At this point, however, the Court decided to stop her. But she decided otherwise and concluded to go on. The Court said, "No, we will have no more of it," and ordered Babbitt the Constable, to take away her papers. Accordingly, Babbitt seized her papers, and bore them off in triumph.

For this new turn of affairs, Abby was better prepared than the Court or any one else anticipated. She made no struggle, uttered not a word of remonstrance, and made not a motion till the act was accomplished. She then deliberately drew from her pocket a copy of the Constitution of Massachusetts, and from the Declaration of Rights thereof read, "Every subject has a right to be secure from all unreasonable searches and seizures of his person, his house, his papers, and all his possessions."

She then commenced to cry, "Give me my papers. Give me my papers. Give me my papers." This cry she continued, gradually raising her voice, till it became a scream. Still the cry went on, "Give me my papers. Give me my papers." She said nothing else, uttered no other sound, but in one steady stream at the top of her voice, continued to cry, "Give me my papers." The Court was evidently in fault, though acting under extreme provocation. Mrs. Folsom evidently saw her advantage, and determined to make the best of it.

The Court winced, fidgeted, consulted, and succumbed. Babbitt was ordered to give up the papers, and Mrs. Folsom was directed to go on as long as she pleased. The Judge in despair, threw himself back in his chair and his feet upon the bench. The last movement was one which did not belong strictly to judicial proceedings, and was never indulged in by any other Court, and here only when overridden by perfectly unmanageable circumstances.

Abby now had the floor to herself, and enjoyed her triumph immensely. She went on in her most eloquent style. She dealt her blows thick and heavy on society, on religious denominations, on fanatics, on the clergy, on the courts, on everybody, but the ordeal she had passed through, and was now passing, had produced an effect not described in her programme. The excitement had so wrought on her physical system, that her strength began to fail, and she was compelled to adopt a change of base, a new manœuvre.

She therefore stopped, complained of fatigue, and asked the Court that the case be adjourned, and she be allowed to go on to-morrow."

Judge Thatcher was altogether too shrewd a man not to see his advantage in this turn of the case. He said, "No, go on, Mrs. Folsom, go right on. We desire to hear you through. No better time than the present. We are anxious to hear you." At this time Abby's shrewdness seemed to desert her.

Her cunning was in direct antagonism to her spirit of opposition. Partly from fatigue, but mainly from will, the last named force prevailed. She refused to comply, and took her seat. The Court seized the advantage, and at once directed the attorney to proceed. He addressed the jury briefly, the Judge charged with as few words as possible, and the jury retired.

While the jury was out, we, the spectators, had occasion to enjoy a most singular and amusing scene. As soon as Mrs. Folsom felt relieved from the pressure and the excitement of her trial, it seemed as if her whole mental force began to droop, and her faculties generally to fail her. Yet the force of habit was such as her tongue refused to stop.

The Judge evidently appreciated the difficulty, and made no effort to proceed with any other business. Abby therefore took out her little Bible and read three verses. She then commenced an oration, which immediately ran into the history the good qualities of her father, etc. She then read, perhaps, as much more, and referred to her childhood, showed how she was trained, and the like. Thus the whole time was spent while the jury deliberated.

When the jury returned, every face in that broad court-room looked anxious. Whether the feeling which prevailed the audience arose from sympathy with Mrs. Folsom, and from a desire to see her lawlessness restrained, or from sheer curiosity, it matters not. The feeling was a strong one, and no spectator was free from its influence.

Even Mrs. Folsom showed a degree of solicitude which had not before appeared in her countenance during the whole day. But the keenest observer, with all his power of penetration, could read nothing in the eye of a single juror. Every look was stolid, blank, unintelligible. The clerk mechanically propounded the question:

"Mr. Foreman have you agreed upon a verdict?"

"We have."

"What say you, Mr. Foreman, is the prisoner at the bar guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty, by reason of partial insanity."

A deathlike silence for a moment ensued, when Abby with a strong effort cried out:

"Mr. Foreman, will you answer me one question?"

The Foreman replied, "Certainly, if I can."

"Do you, from the very bottom of your soul, believe that I am partially insane?"

The Foreman, in a firm and decided tone, replied.

"I do."

This was the most cruel cut of all. If the verdict had been "not guilty" she would have triumphed.

If "guilty," she would have proclaimed herself a martyr, and have gone to jail a heroine. But to hear a jury of her peers declare her insane! Well, for once Abby Folsom was prostrate, and for a few weeks, by order of the Court, enjoyed the kind protection of an insane asylum.

Wheat in Liverpool—Average California, 12s@12s 2d; Club, 12s 5d@12s 7d.

The continuance of the dull season is a sufficient reason for a lack of extended comments at this time. Trade in all its departments is inactive, though the outlook presents no really discouraging points, if we except the likelihood that we may be short of that amount of tonnage which would be desirable. Our merchants, as a class, are in a better financial condition than last year, and information leads us to believe that the country at large has more money in it now than then, though the introduction of a considerable amount of capital here now might produce a relaxation in present high ruling rates of interest which would tend to a more extensive development of our natural resources and the establishment of our manufacturing interests on a broader and more permanent basis.

In respect to the facilities for a manufacturing community, or natural resources, but few if any States in the Union excel Oregon. Our sparse population and great distance from the leading markets of the world are circumstances in our condition which operate seriously against our progress. An exchange, on this point, remarks truthfully that as we cannot shorten the distance, nor at present lessen the cost of transportation, there is but one thing to do, and that is to bring the consumers to our doors; and this can only be done through the stimulation of manufactures. We want more population, but we want the right kind. We have enough of adventurers, non-producers, middlemen, and such like. We want more capitalists with broad views and skilled workmen with brawny arms to take hold of our rich but crude products and convert them into manufactures. The only hope for permanent success in agricultural pursuits in this State is in developing near markets for the products of the soil. Every enlargement of local manufactures, by increasing the number of consumers, is a direct benefit to the farmers. We must stop importing what can be made here, and the quicker we do it the better. What if we do have to pay a trifle more for articles made in this State. We can well afford to do this, since it indirectly comes back to us in the increased prices realized for our raw products. It is said that charity begins at home. Observe this rule with reference to manufactured articles, giving the preference always to Oregon made goods where the quality is equally as good as the imported article. It is true there are obstacles in the way and prejudices to overcome. Most of us are from other parts of the Union, accustomed to certain brands and trade-marks. We think it is impossible to give them up. Suppose these eastern or foreign manufacturers should transfer their business to this coast? It would be all right then to patronize them. Is it not equally sensible to patronize other Eastern and foreign manufacturers who are already here carrying on the same lines of business, or wish to engage in similar enterprises? It makes but little difference in the quality of an article whether it be made in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago, or other distant markets; but it makes a vast difference in the prosperity of this coast whether the money for these articles shall be sent abroad to support artizans in other cities or retailed here for the same purpose. Another obstacle to the increase of local manufactures is found in our high rates of interest. Money for manufacturing purposes ought to be obtainable as low here as in any other State in the Union. When we cease striving to see how much we can make out of each other, and aim rather to increase the aggregate capital of the State, by developing and making practicable her resources, then, and not till then, will our Commonwealth enter upon that era of prosperity so justly her due.

About Wheat and Ships.

During the past few days there has been considerable excitement in our market for the season, in regard to prices for wheat, and while exporters who have vessels here to load inform us that they are only offering $1 50 per cental, it is reported on good authority that others are willing to make contracts for thirty days to take all delivered in that time at $1 60. As will be seen by our dispatches a very marked advance has taken place both in San Francisco and Liverpool. Some dealers assert that the former market is suffering the effect of a "corner" by holders of wheat, put up on the several vessels there at present under charter and awaiting cargoes at a heavy expense, and that as soon as these vessels are loaded prices will drop back to $1 50. But this theory is worthless to account for the advance at Liverpool, and from that fact loses part of its probability that it is exactly the reason for higher prices in San Francisco. At any rate, it seems that the advance is real, and that exporters have the opinion that it will last for some weeks to come. The mere assertion that a number of vessels are on the way here from England, and that a few may be here by the first of September," although, if true, might be very welcome intelligence, yet if no proofs of its correctness were furnished, it might exercise an influence not promotive of the best interests of either buyers or sellers. We, however, learn to-day that a large exporting firm in San Francisco, not working this market heretofore, have chartered quite a number of ships to load at this port, but these vessels are not yet at that port and the date of their arrival here is uncertain. The bark Wellesborn is now on her way here from San Francisco, and will be here the latter part of next week, the Lord Mayor is ready to receive her cargo, and other than these if any are to arrive within the time named by our morning contemporary, we have been unable to get information from those who ought to know. Be it however as it may, we are glad that prospects are brightening for the producer to receive more remunerative prices for their grain and shall rejoice to know that many more ships are coming hitherward to carry off grain and leave money than we have yet been able to hear of.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES! NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearney street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at the pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and the broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible, life-destroying maladies, that they be cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by taking the names of eminent physicians from [illegible] and other places. Be therefore careful to make inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confusion of ideas, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania, and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give Five Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco [illegible].

Married Men,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are laboring under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility [illegible] nor delay to obtain [illegible].

DR. GIBBON is responsible, and will give to every patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or no charge.

[illegible]

Patients at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has [illegible], and have medicines [illegible] damage [illegible] with full and plain directions, by [illegible] Dollars coin, in registered letter [illegible] office or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union. All communications strictly confidential.

Caution [illegible]

Beware of the San Francisco [illegible] pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, [illegible] the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other [illegible] tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, hack carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make [illegible]. It will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting false titles, certificates, pretended patients. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he professes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney st., corner Commercial, San Francisco, Postoffice Box [illegible]

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform Dr. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the OREGONIAN.
